ALLEGRA MONK

Daughter of a glass blower and a mural painter, Allegra Monk was raised to appreciate artistry as a life-long practice. Growing up in a studio in Sydney, and walking up King Street each morning attending Newtown High School of the Performing Arts, she became an avid listener to the world around her from a young age.

At seventeen, Allegra was accepted into the prestigious Western Australian Academy of Performing Arts where in her final year she played Ophelia in Hamlet, directed by Sean O'Shea. At her final showcasing performance at WAAPA, Allegra was awarded the annual Lesley Anderson Award for Best Actor. This year she has had the pleasure of working with Penguin Publishing House as an Audiobook Narrator (The Unstoppable Flying Flanagan), and is currently producing music for her debut album to be released later this year.
